F. J. Freestone, State Grange Master, Addresses Steuben County Meeting

Executive Complements Ladies Upon Equality With Men in Organization Councils—Points Out That Steuben Has Greater Number Councils Than Any Other Grange in State or Nation.

Steuben County Grangers met in Bath Monday evening. All of the 44 Granges of Steuben County were represented. District Deputy Claire N. Arnburg presided. Deputy Kidd of Livingston County and Assemblyman Corwin, deputy of Schuyler County, responded briefly after being introduced by Mr. Arnburg. A pleasing reading "Aunt Hannah Joins the Lodge" was given by a member from the So. Pulteney lodge.

Fred J. Freestone of Interlaken, Master of New York State Grange was the first speaker of the evening. In opening his brief remarks he complimented the ladies on sharing equal place and recognition with the men in the councils of the Grange.

Referring to the growth of the Grange Mr. Freestone stated there were 177 subordinate Granges of which 50 have existed for 50 or more years and 91 Granges have been organized for 60 or more years.

Steuben County has 44 Granges, the largest number of any county in the state or nation which is a distinction to be proud of. He also spoke of the social value and high ideals of the Grange. It is one of the most respected and unselfish groups or arganizations.

Quartette and solo numbers were given by the Steuben County Pomona quartette.

Master Freestone introduced Frederick Brenchman, legislative representive of the National Grange at Washington who spoke on legislation as favored or condemned by the Grange. He spoke in place of James Farmer, National Grange Lecturer who was expected to have spoken but was unable to be present.

Vocal numbers by the quartette closed the meeting.

Grange Hears Literary Program

Woodhull Grange met in regular session Saturday evening with Bert McCaslin, master, presiding.

During the lecturer's hour, the literary program arranged by Mrs. Lula Kilmer was much enjoyed. It was given in alphabetical order, A, B, C and D were the educational group. "The Founding of Mather's Day" was given by Mrs. Alice Brown. E, F, G and H were the musical group; "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "In the Garden" were given by Mrs. Grace Dyer, Miss Fannie Bollen, Miss Esther Symonds, George Andrus, Earle Miller, Earle Brown, Howard Symonds and Harry Morgan. I,J,K, L and M were the inspirational group, the following numbers were given under this group. "The Business of Friendship", Lee Miller Reading "Play the Game"—Lorenzo Dyer.

Reading, "Grit"—Mrs. Mary Peters.

Reading, "The Psalm of Our Grange—Mrs. Mabel Bollen.

Poem, "G. L. F. Triplets"—Miss Minnie Husted.

Reading—"Did You Give Him a Lift?"—Mrs. Marguerite Symonds.

Reading, "Don't Quit"—Mrs. Mildred McCaslin.

Those in the remaining group of letters were to arrange amusements at the close of the session.

A report of the meeting recently held in Savona was given by Mrs. Mildred McCaslin.

A memorial program will be given at the next meeting under the direction of the service and hospitality committee.

Grange closed with the song, "Smile, Smile, Smile."

GEORGE POTTER

The funeral of George Potter was held in Canisteo Thursday and was attended by the following from this vicinity: Mr. and Mrs. Basil Ladd, Harold Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Croft, Miss Laura Croft, Miss Marion Croft, Mrs. Hazel Baker, Mrs. Myron Grist, Elwyn Reynolds and Ephriam Potter.

Rebekah Lodge To Stimulate Attendance

To stimulate a greater interest and better attendance the Rebekah Lodge has planned a surprise box in which the name of each member is placed. At each meeting a name will be drawn and if that member is present their dues to the order will be paid for one year.

The Rev. Carl Grabb Tells Ad Club Members of Work Relief

The Rev. Carl Grabb, supervisor of the work relief in Steuben County, spoke to members of the Addison Advertising Club and their guests Thursday evening. The meeting was a "ladies' night", dinner being served in the gymnasium-auditorium of Addison High School by members of the senior class.

Mr. Grabb told of the operation of work relief in Steuben County, stressing the need for expenditure of these federal and state funds to take up the slack of unemployment. "With approximately one-fifth of the population either on work relief or home relief", the speaker stated, "you can see what a fertile ground there is for the seeds of Communism, or some other ism, to sprout. About ten per cent of these people will present a serious problem because they prefer government aid to doing for themselves. As for the other ninety per cent, I am sure they would grab at the chance of a real job.

"In spite of all the talk about grafting of relief funds, I've never seen any indication of it in this county—in fact I don't know how you would go about it to graft—we never see any money. The funds go to the county treasurer, and the county treasurer issues checks directly to the workers. No one else touches the money . . ."

Mr. Grabb answered a number of of questions regarding relief work, at the conclusion of his talk. He spoke briefly concerning the various projects accomplished by work relief in the town of Addison, stating the government funds expended here amounted altogether to $33,410.33.

There were about eighty members and guests at the meeting. Preceding Mr. Grabb's talk members of the senior class gave a varied program of entertainment. This included a piano duet by Mss Eleanor Hogue and Miss Betty Pepper; vocal solo, Miss Madeline Short; violin solo, Wesley Smith, and a tap dancing number by Miss Jogene Hickey.

W. M. Goff was chairman of the entertainment committee. Dr. M. F. Whitmore, vice president of the club, presided.

The Ray Symonds Entertain Church Groups From E. Troupsburg

The class party of the East Troupsburg Philathea and Baracca classes were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Symonds, Friday evening.

A social evening and games were enjoyed, followed by refreshments.

Adrian Hackett to Be Valedictorian

Adrian Hackett is honored by being valedictorian of the senior class for 1935, having attained the highest average in the academic course; and Alfred Dyer will be salutatorian, ranking second in the graduating class.

Mr. Hackett has been honored as class president for three years and this year is class treasurer while Mr. Dyer holds the honor as class president this year, and has been vice president three of his four high school years.

Honorable mention is also given Miss Rena Peters, secretary of the 1935 class.

Mrs. Myers Hostess To Missionary Group

Mrs. Henry Myers entertained the Baptist Missionary Society at her home last week Wednesday afternoon.

Devotions were led by Mrs. Eva Symonds, followed by the regular business of the society.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Benjamin R. Croft, Mrs. Howard Symonds, Mrs. Jabe Johnson, Mrs. Eva Symonds and the hostess, Mrs. Myers.

ATTENDS GRAND LODGE

Arthur Smith, Masonic Master of Woodhull Restoration Lodge 777, attended the annual session of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York in New York City last week from Tuesday through Thursday.

Dinner Party in Honor of Keith Symonds

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Symonds were host and hostess at a dinner in honor of the fourth anniversary of their son Keith on Wednesday, May 8.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Brown of Addison, Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Husted, the honor guest, little Keith and Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Symonds.

Father Dowdell Talks on Life In West Indies

The Rev. Father Dowdell, curate of Christ Church, Corning, was the speaker at the final dinner meeting of the season held Monday evening in the Guild Hall of the Church of the Redeemer by the Men's Club. Father Dowdell, who was instrumental in the establishment of St. Michael's Seminary, Porto Rico, spoke interestingly of life in the West Indies.

Wilfred Miller was in charge of the dinner which preceded the business meeting. A committee composed of Melvin G. Hubbs and Gilbert Brown, was appointed to make plans to remodel the electric wiring of the church. The club acted favorably on the proposal to join the Addison softball league and John B. Davis was appointed manager of the team which will be entered by the club.

Preliminary plans were made for a card party to be held at an early date. Charles Weatherby was selected as the chairman of the decorations committee and Dixon Curtis was named to be in charge of the refreshments. Harry Fritts and M. G. Hubbs will be charge of the ticket sale. Gilbert Brown was placed in charge of the tables and Maynard Allen of the publicity and advertising.

Parent-Teacher Conference at Wellsville

The annual Spring conference of the South Central District of the Parent and Teachers conference will be held in Wellsville, Saturday, May 18, at the Wellsville High School. All interested in the work of this association are urged to attend.

Charles Stevens of Westfield is visiting his sister, Mrs. Benjamin Croft and the Rev. Croft.

Woodhull P. O. To Become Third Class

Postmaster General James A. Farley has moved to bring the Woodhull postmastership within the political third class office, effective July 1. This means that the postmaster henceforth is subject to civil service examination and that the office will be filled during the present Administration, upon the recommendation of the Democratic patronage chiefs for the locality. Whether the incumbent will be permitted to continue in service or a civil service examination will be conducted in which they may compete, will depend upon the attitude of the Democratic leaders towards those who now occupy the office.

It also means that the present system of compensation, based upon stamp cancellations, will go out of existence, in so far as this office is concerned, July 1, and a regular salary will be substituted. The salary will not be less than $1,000 a year, and may be more depending upon the amount of annual business done through the office.

Appointment by the President, subject to Senate ratification, after candidates have survived the civil service examination and the inquiry of political leaders, will displace the former mode of appointment, which was upon recommendation of postal inspectors, who visited the postal district.

Jordan and Dann Lead For Year

Grade Holstein Owned by Robert Dann of Painted Post Produces 16,425 Pounds of Milk—564 Cows Reported.

The yearly report for the Southern Steuben Dairy Herd Improvement Association shows seventy-five dairies completed yearly records. 78 cows produced over 10,000 pounds of milk, 209 cows produced over 300 pounds of butterfat, 35 cows produced over 400 pounds of butterfat. There were eight in the herd of Wilson Bennett of Painted Post and also in the herd of C. A. Stewart & Son of Addison that produced over 400 pounds of butterfat. There were only two cows that produced more than 500 pounds of butterfat. These were in the herd of Robert Dann, Painted Post. The high cow for the year was a grade Holstein owned by Robert Dann. This cow produced 16,425 pounds of milk and 542.1 pounds of butterfat.

The following members of the association had high herds based on butterfat production:

Owner	Cows	Fat	Milk
Raymond Jordan	16	371.8	10,146
C. A. Stewart & Son	25	356.7	10,025
H. D. Grist	9	341.9	10,352
Wilson Bennett	55	337.1	8,990
August Neilitz	19	333.8	9,584

These tests were made under the supervision of Robert S. Drake.

Junior-Senior Prom Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Willson, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Mose, Miss Mary Montgomery, John Grange, Miss Cecilia O'Connor, William Lundrigan, Miss Lucille Chart and John Flynn have been announced as honorary guests at the Junior-Senior prom to be held at Addison High School Friday evening, May 17.

All plans indicate that the prom will be one of the most outstanding social events ever held in Addison. Music will be furnished by the Ramblers, well known Hornell orchestra who have acquired prestige over a wide area and whose services are in constant demand for collegiate functions and various social affairs. Decorations for the prom, it is stated, will outdo anything seen here in recent years, and everything indicates that the event will go down in history as one of the most pronounced successes ever held at the school.

PT-A To Present "Listen To Me" Sparkling Comedy, May 23-24

Proceeds to Be Used for Purchase of Playground Equipment—Play Has Won Reputation as One of Best On Amateur Stage—Cast to Be Selected Locally.

In order to buy playground equipment, which is sorely needed, the Parent-Teacher Association will present the sparkling musical comedy, "Listen To Me", in the Woodhull High School Auditorium on May 23 and 24. The production, with its two hours of comedy, songs and dances, is expected to prove one of the most entertaining ever offered in town.

"Listen To Me", since its first appearance, over eighteen months ago, has won for itself the reputation of being one of the best plays on the amateur stage today. One critic says of it, "The best amateur play that has come to my attention during the past ten years". Another calls it "a highly professional show suitable to amateur capabilities".

The play deals with the very humorous attempts of two young people, Dick Marshall and Alice Richards, to manage a large hotel which has been left to them jointly. Under the terms of an erratic will, made by a man who had never seen either of them, but knew their fathers well, they are to conduct the experiment for a week. If successful, the hotel is theirs, if not, they must sell to the executor of the estate. When Dick and Alice Arrive, each determined to run things his or her own way, complcations begin to arise. Mr. Banks, the manager and principal comedian, undertakes the difficult task of keeping peace between the two owners, but his influence is offset by Mr. Weldon, the executor, who would benefit materially if the experiment failed. Banks, who has been managing the hotel by the simple method of paying nobody and expecting no one to pay him, does not have a serious moment on the stage. With Elbert Twiss, an absent-minded, befuddled guest, he carries most of the comedy, and when this pair are together, as in the outstanding "telephone scene", the subtle comedy reaches its height.

The cast of principals number ten, including Bill and Billy, the bellhop and the maid, Mrs. Sylvester, Miss Stuart, and Mr. Corey, a lawyer. The comedy is enhanced by chorus singing and dancing, among which is the beautiful "Firefly Dance" which closes the first act. The cast will be selected locally and the entire production will be rehearsed and staged under the direction of Miss Ruth T. Boyden of Boston.

Big Word Derby Heads Into Home Stretch With Mrs. Wilson Leading

Old Clipping Answers Many Questions Regarding Village Affairs Twenty-Seven Years Ago

Dr. William E. Barron Had Just Declined Renomination for Another Term as Mayor — Abolition of Poll Tax Proposed — Report of James T. Erwin, Police Chief, says "There Has Been Usual Amount of Kicking for Which We Are Grateful".

What was the village budget 27 years ago? Who was the village president? Who were the village trustees? Who was the chief of police and what were the principal offenses against the law a quarter century back. Some insight on village affairs of that time is brought back into review by a clipping from an old copy of the ADVERTISER found among some personal belongings of a local resident several weeks ago. The item is of particular interest as it was discovered just twenty-seven years after publication in March, 1908. It reads:

At a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Addison, held at the offices of Smith and Crane, March 4, 1910 at 8:00 P. M.

Present—W. E. Barron, president, presiding.

Trustees — Newcomb, Waterman and Parker.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The following bills were read and on motion ordered paid: William H. Farnham, rebate on cement walk, $10.30; Florence M. Scutt, stenographer's services, $2.00; Addison Electric Light and Power Co., street lights, February, $195.00; Addison Electric Light and Power Co., lights for City Hall, February, $23.75; J. R. Christie, manager, services of orchestra, $16.50; W. E. Barron, return vital statistics, $6.75; Addison Gas and Power Co., gas, City Hall, February, $3.96; Charles L. Crane, services, village clerk, $15.00; Edward L. Hill, services, registrar, $25.00; William F. Cooper, labor, streets, $26.55; J. E. Parker, coal, City Hall, $21.00.

Report of William A. Cronk, treasurer, presented, read, approved and on motion ordered filed and printed.

PUBLIC SPENDING

Walter W. Babson in a recent article, finds less danger in the fact enormous public spending is probably leading us towards inflation—"and all its agonies". Mr. Babson says: ". . . But the willingness of the government to support a certain class in comparative comfort is creating among this class the idea the government owes them a living . . . I feel this—the squandering of our national character—is the real price we are paying for our spend-our-way-back-to-prosperity program."

Mr. Babson suggests three ways by which it may be possible to check this tendency to pile up huge deficits through unlimited spending of public funds. First he recognizes the fact beneficiaries of the relief system may roll up a powerful political machine of selfishness, a machine with the one primary purpose of keeping government grants coming whether or not they are needed. To forestall that condition Mr. Babson would temporarily take the vote away from those receiving relief and their immediate families, on the same principle that prohibits residents of the District of Columbia from voting.

Next he would eliminate competition between public and private employment by reducing the pay on relief jobs to 65 per cent of the "going wage" in private industry—thus making citizens desire to get on better paying private jobs as business picks up.

His third suggestion is one which takes into account a growing danger of the Democratic form of government. That is, the tendencies for different interests to bring terrific pressure to bear on legislators to vote huge sums of money for their selfish purposes. Porkbarrel projects have for innumerable years cost the taxpayers of the country countless billions which have usually been unjustified by the ends accomplished. Because a Senator must needs go to the people of his district for re-election, a cunning lobbyist can often influence that Senator's vote against his judgment, on threat of indignation of the group desiring a hand-out. Giving the Senators full pay for life, whether re-elected or not, would be Mr. Babson's way of eliminating pressure on members of the upper house and give them the opportunity of voting for or against legislation upon its merits.

The first and last of these suggestions are quite unusual, but the second is one that has been put forth in similar form by other commentators. Nearly everyone should see the wisdom of providing some sort of life payment to Senators to make them immune from threats of vicious blocs that desire selfish legislation at one time or another. The number of Senators being limited and so many of them being of mature age the cost would be small compared to the possibility for say huge appropriations they are often tempted to vote for to save their own political skins. There is little likelihood the Patman bill ever would have passed the Senate if a rule such as this had been in force.

As to temporarily withholding the vote from persons on relief—this is nothing short of justice to those footing the bills for relief. However there is no chance of anything like that coming to pass during the crisis of the present depression. Jim Farley, chairman of the national committee of the Democratic party is too thoroughly aware of the political advantage of patronage to let anything like this slip through the legislative mills, if anyone had the temerity to introduce such a measure.

THE CLUB

No one could begrudge the honest spending of the four-billion fund for needed relief. What most people who give the matter real thought do deplore, is the fact this huge sum gives the Administration a terrific lever with which to push into line many legislators who do not desire to vote for bills they honestly believe are not for the best interests of the country.

It is certain that more Democrats are fundamentally opposed to the New Deal policies of the Administration—collectivism supplanting the tried American system of individualism, than are Republicans. From Thomas Jefferson down thru the years Democrats have been against too much centralized power in the federal government and jealous of state's rights. Yet these members of the majority party desire to be re-elected. They know the President holds a powerful tool for cutting the political pattern in their own districts. If they incense the President and their districts fare slimly in the distribution of this money, then may the people show resentment by sending someone else to Congress. Thus do they continue to vote for measures and policies they feel in their hearts to be wrong.

This situation is most aptly put, not by a Republican, but by a strong Democratic writer, Frank Kent of the Baltimore Sun. Mr. Kent utters the following condemnation of the present set-up in Washington:

"In plain words, but for the money, the Administration policy would collapse. Not only would the pending program not go through but the policies in force for the past year would be repudiated. The Roosevelt control of Congress today depends neither upon his personal prestige nor the soundness of his proposals. The first, his friends concede, has diminished, and there is profound distrust of the second. His ability to enact legislation has come wholly to rest upon the appetite and necessities of the states for federal funds. There is literally nothing else to the situation. But for the money, Mr. Roosevelt, despite his huge majority in House and Senate, would have control of neither. Even with the money, he is having an extraordinarily hard time getting his way."

It is not the actual spending of these huge sums of borrowed money. It is not alone the fact our coming generation will be immeasurably burdened with debt, which makes the sound student of political economy shake his head these days. It is the fact this fund is being used as a club, shaken over the heads of otherwise sound-minded Democrats, persuading them to vote for radical innovations and dreams of impractical Intellectuals. Legislation they secretly abhor and dread as a great disruption of American institutions.

OUR GENERATION'S FAULT

In a nearby city of about 50,000 population a teacher recently submitted this questionnaire to some 150 students: "Does it pay to be honest?" Surprising as it may seem to this generation, the answer by 95 per cent of the pupils was "No".

It has been a highly popular indoor sport for hundreds of years to "view with alarm" the tendencies of the up-coming generation by whomever happened to hold the adult stage at the time. It is apparently as natural as life itself to find fault with and criticize the young people for brashness, impudence and a hundred and one vices adults believe THEY "never could have done" when young. But on the whole history does not show through the past centuries that things "went to the dogs" when these successively condemned young people took control of the world's destinies.

Even so one cannot help meditating when a group of 150 yeoung people express by such a preponderant majority, the opinion that it does not pay to be honest. Must we accept the probability 95 out of every hundred people a few years from now will be crooks of one type or another? Are we spending millions of tax money educating our youth, to the end they may be bigger and more dexterous thieves, counterfeiters and confidence men? Are the honest people in a generation or two, to become hopelessly in the minority?

It hardly seems possible that this land is facing so fast a decadence, acceptance of those figures might indicate. True it is that the countries of Europe once faded into centuries of "Dark Ages" when the world apparently sank backward and civilization showed no sign of advancing further. True, also, there have been insidious forces at work in the land which are enough to discourage any generation into believing honesty was a hollow sounding-log, giving off echoes of benefits that seemingly are not borne out by the hard facts of life. Then again, it may be the young people answering the questionnaire were giving an honest, impartial opinion of the monetary phase of the matter without any idea of themselves following the dishonest road. Recently Prof. Edward Thorndyke, famed psychologist of Columbia University put a series of questions to students and to unemployed persons. Those questioned were asked to set their price for doing all sorts of unusual things from cannibalism to losing an arm, being insane for a month or eating an earthworm. For most of these things the ones questioned demanded enormous sums that ran into millions. When he was all through the learned professor longed to have real money to offer, nursing the suspicion many of these questioned were liars. Wrote he: A person setting $1,000,000 as the price for eating an earthworm might well do it for $100 if someone actually put the cash before him."

All of which may seem incongruous, but does prove the point that questionnaires are not necessarily a real guide to the true opinions of those questioned. Ninety-five out of a hundred students questioned might state that "honesty is not the best policy," but in practice most of them may prefer to stay on the straight and narrow road.

And when all is said and done we of this generation must admit where the fault lies, if the next group to take over the land's affairs actually believe more can be gained by crookedness than honesty. We must face the shameful fact that our own generation will go down in history as the most lawless, ruthless generation that has ever lived in America up to this time. Could it be surprising the next generation should think of aping some of our vices, vices which our generation has shown to be immensely, if only momentarily profitable in dollars and cents?

Surely we should hasten to look in the mirror, before we condemn those for whom this generation has set a bad example.

The Patman Bonus Bill

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE passage of the Patman Bonus Bill in both houses of Congress makes it the disagreeable but inescapable duty of the President and of the legislative minority to prevent it from becoming law. The task is disagreeable because a very large body of veterans, many of them in great need, sincerely believe that the bill pays a just and contracted debt. If it did that and only that, there would be no ground whatever for a veto.

In fact, the bill is a bonus on top of a bonus. For the just debt, contracted in 1925, calls for the payment to each veteran of $1 a day for domestic service, $1.25 for foreign service, plus 25 per cent of that total, plus 4 per cent interest compounded annually from 1925 to 1945. The Patman Bill would pay in 1935 not only what is due in 1935—a thing to which no one could object—but, in addition, ten years of compound interest at 4 per cent.

Moreover, the Patman Bill proposes to make the payment by the issue of fiat money, that is to say, with money which is not covered by taxes or by borrowing. Thus it is an outright gift to a special group based on no recognized right or need, and it is financed by money created irresponsibly and arbitrarily. A president, mindful of his obligations not only to this generation but to future generations, could not fail to take the position that the government shall not make gifts to special groups and that it shall not print the money with which to pay for the gifts.

* * *

It is a simple moral issue, clear cut and inescapable. It is a question of right and wrong, of whether it is right for a democracy to vote gifts under political pressure and of whether it is right to pay for political gifts by printing money. On that ground the question has to be fought out.

Inflation and the Budget

The text of the Patman Bill itself indicates that it was prepared by men who are primarily interested in what is usually called "inflation," or, as they put it, in an increase of "the purchasing power of millions of the consuming public." In view of the fact that a large part of the country ardently desires inflation and another large part deeply fears it, an effort to make clear to ourselves some aspects of the question may be in order.

From 1916 to 1921 we had an inflation and a big one. For in 1921 the dollar would buy at wholesale less than half of what it bought in 1916. The cost of living increased about 80 per cent. So any one having a fixed wage or salary or a pension or a fixed income from mortgages or bonds or rents had lost nearly half of his real income. When men talk about inflation and its dangers this is the kind of thing they mean. In Germany inflation went so far that it wiped out fixed incomes. In France and Italy it went so far that it permanently reduced fixed incomes.

The question is: Are we headed for an inflation like that of the war, or even worse, like that of Germany after the war? Mr. Lewis W. Douglas thinks we are because the Federal budget is so badly unbalanced. He points out that since 1931 we have had a cumulative deficit of more than 14 billions and that we are still accumulating it.

* * *

Now the curious thing is that although the national debt today is greater than it was at the peak of the war, the price level is very much lower. The dollar is about twice as valuable today as it was when the debt was about 3 billions smaller. How are we to explain that? Why is it that we are not having inflation, why, on the contrary, is the Roosevelt dollar still a much more valuable dollar than the war dollar or even than the Coolidge dollar?

The answer is that to produce inflation a mere increase in the public debt is not sufficient. We got inflation during the war because (a) all the debt was spent for goods, (b) because less goods were produced owing to the fact that millions of workers were in the army, important producing areas were being devastated, and there was not enough shipping and other transport to bring to the markets all the goods that might have been produced. In other words, the inflation came because we had at one and the same time a vastly increased demand for goods by all the belligerent governments and a greatly reduced supply of goods all over the world.

In the German, French and Italian inflations the same conditions prevailed. The governments borrowed and spent hugely at a time when their farms and factories were incapable of meeting the demand. Their economic plants had been partly destroyed, they had been denuded of raw materials, machinery was obsolete or in bad condition, their workers were demoralized by war and revolution.

* * *

Now, in the period of the Hoover and Roosevelt deficits the conditions have been wholly different. In the first place, the increased Federal debt has in large part gone not into demand for goods, but into the refinancing of old debts. In the second place, the increase of Federal expenditures, which has not gone into the old debts, has probably not been equal to the decline in the normal expenditures of states and local governments. In the third place, and most important, instead of a shortage of goods and an inability to produce enough as in the war or in post-war Germany agriculture and industry have surpluses or excess capacity.

That is why, in spite of a debt that is greater than it was in 1921, we have a price level that is half as high and there is no inflation.

* * *

The conclusion to be drawn from this is not that we can and should go on indefinitely creating new Federal debt. Far from it. The conclusion, it seems to me, is this: The Hoover deficits and a large part of the Roosevelt deficits were not even potentially inflationary, because they merely substituted new debts for old. The so-called pump-priming deficit under Roosevelt will not be inflationary, provided production continues to increase, as it has increased since 1933, faster than the deficit. If the new demand for goods due to government spending is not greater than the additional goods produced, there can be no inflationary rise of prices. If production is curtailed under A. A. A. the drought and N. R. A. and government spending increases there will be an inflationary rise of prices. But it will not be substantial unless there is created a real shortage of goods relative to the demand. The deficit would become dangerous if recovery stopped. For that would mean that production was not advancing, while expenditures were advancing. This would eventually produce inflation.

* * *

The American budget today will cease to show a deficit if there is recovery. For recovery would reduce the need of expenditures and increase the revenues. On the other hand, if there is not recovery, then it is very dangerous to continue having deficits. For that would increase the demand for goods faster than the supply of goods.

We ought now, therefore, to plan definitely to bring the next budget toward a balance. If we have recovery that will be easy to do. If we do not have recovery it will be hard to do. But it will be necessary. Either way, though I cannot follow all of Mr. Douglas's reasoning or his excessively alarmist predictions, I come out to the same practical conclusion, which is that the time has come to make up our minds to balance the budget, and to take the position that the emergency money appropriated by Congress is to be the last important deficit in this depression.

A Doctor's Orders And the NRA

By MARK SULLIVAN

No, this is not translated from the Russian. Nor is it taken from any of the comic operas of Gilbert and Sullivan—though I suspect some future American opera may make use of it. It all happened in the United States. It is all on record in plain English—or at least legal and bureaucratic English—at N. R. A. headquarters in Washington:

At New Ulm, Minn., Miss Ada Erler works for the Bee Hive, a retail store operated by J. A. Ochs & Son. She has worked there some twenty years. Last fall, feeling indisposed, she consulted a physician, who diagnosed her trouble and, at her request, wrote a letter to her employer. This letter, after describing Miss Erler's illness as "gastric and intestinal disturbances," went on to say: "Special attention to meals is required, and it is desirable that some additional rest time be given. . . . It is, therefore, advised, if at all possible, that she be granted an additional period at midday so that she may have the time required to give attention to these special details of diet and rest."

At the Bee Hive the regular time allowed for lunch was one hour. Miss Erler felt that with an extra thirty minutes she would be able to attend adequately to the "details of diet and rest" which Dr. Hammermeister had prescribed. Accordingly, she showed her employer the doctor's letter and asked to be allowed to extend her lunch period to ninety minutes.

The problem presented by Miss Erler's case was one which at any time in America's history, up to October 21, 1933, could have been settled in half a minute.

But now Mr. Ochs was obliged to remember there is an N. R. A., and a code for the retail trade. The code consists of seventeen closely printed pages, plus nine separate pamphlets of amendments. There is one section which seems to apply and which justly put him on guard. It reads:

"The hours worked by any employee during each day shall be consecutive, provided that an interval not longer than one hour may be allowed for each regular meal period, and such interval not counted as part of the employee's working time. Any rest period which may be given employees shall not be deducted from such employee's working time."

Mr. Ochs, reading this provision and uneasily aware of the penalties carried by N. R. A.—A fine of $500 a day for some offenses and imprisonment for others—thought it prudent to ask N. R. A. for an exemption. He wrote out the facts. He inclosed the letter from Miss Erler's doctor, and he asked that N. R. A. permit him to give Miss Erler an extra half-hour for lunch.

At N. R. A. headquarters, the ponderous wheels and shafts and cylinders of bureaucracy went into motion. First, a memorandum in multiple was prepared, setting forth in detail the history of the case and the law applying to it. Copies of this were sent to all the departments of the N. R. A. and to all the officials concerned.

Now ensued a period during which department heads and bureau chiefs gestated, pondered pros and cons, looked up precedents, consulted each other. The file of the case became what European bureaucracies call a "dossier." In the end, the several functionaries wrote out their separate recommendations and sent them, attached to the original memorandum, to N. R. A. headquarters. At headquarters the documents were channeled to the desk of an under official. He made a digest of them which showed, among other things, that:

The division of research and planning believed: "The approval of this petition is not contrary to the policy of the national industrial recovery act."

Consumers' Advisory Board considered: "Since no substantial consumer interests appear to be involved, we make no comments . . . at this time."

The Industrial Advisory Board, with laconic brevity unusual in N. R. A. documents, merely "approved."

The legal division of the N. R. A., Gullie B. Goldin, assistant counsel, was agreeable to granting the petition but only on condition that certain imperfections in the original memorandum be straightened out: "1. Line 2 of proposed order, add 'New Ulm, Minn.' 2. Lines 20 and 24—change words 'applicants,' 'they,' 'petitioners,' etc., to the singular."

Finally, after about six weeks, came the concluding step, preparation of Administration Order 60-318, granting the exemption. Order 60-318 is a formidable document with two legal "whereases" and one "now, therefore, pursuant to authority vested"—— It ends with the bestowal of N. R. A.'s consent: "The petitioner is hereby permitted to extend the lunch hour of Miss Ada Erler from one hour to one hour and a half until such time as the physical difficulties complained of have been alleviated."

Order 60-318 bears date of January 4, 1935. Mr. Ochs's letter to N. R. A. had been written November 16, 1934. Thus N. R. A. consumed forty-nine days in considering and deciding whether Miss Ada Erler could have an extra half hour for lunch without subjecting her employer to risk of criminal penalties.

N. R. A. headquarters at Washington explains that the N. R. A. rule quoted above was adopted by retail dealers to prevent any of them from "laying off" employees for an inordinate time between rush hours. The fact remains that existence of the rule made it necessary for Mr. Ochs to ask N. R. A. for an exemption.

Is it conceivable that business can carry on under conditions in which matters like this from every town and village in the country are funnelled into Washington for bureaucratic decision?

Republican Chieftains To Undertake Tour of State; Party Spirits High

Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton is expected to begin his tour of the state on May 20th, with Manhattan headquarters, at 54 West 40th street, his point of departure.

According to a suggested schedule, Mr. Eaton's first stop will be Westchester, after which he will proceed up Champlain Valley to Plattsburg. After crossing over to Ogdensburg the party, which will include Assemblyman Irving M. Ives, Minority Leader of the Assembly, will proceed to Utica, and thence back through the Mohawk Valley, south to Schoharie County and Orange County.

After going west to Tioga County and to Chautauqua County, the party is due to proceed north to Niagara County and, after going east to Monroe County, will travel north and south, zig-zagging back east to Syracuse.

"I will not miss a county in the state on my tour", Mr. Eaton telephoned to headquarters. "While press of business may bring about temporary changes in the schedule tentatively arrived at, I will arrange to advise County Chairmen and members of the Legislature of the probable time of our arrival so that we can arrange to meet at hours mutually convenient. I am delighted at the way things are shaping themselves in the state, and feel more optimistic than I have felt in many months."

Speaking Bureau to Be Formed

Co-incident with Chairman Eaton's determination to set up a fast-moving, highpressure publicity bureau for the State Committee, he is contemplating the early organization of a Speakers' bureau, it was learned today. This was one of the many things suggested on May 11th at the joint meeting of the Campaign Committee of the Republican State Committee, and the Campaign Committee of the Assembly, which has been organized by Mr. Ives.

In a letter to Colonel Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the State Committee, the Chairman asked for suggestions as to the appontment of trained orators to the projected Speakers' Bureau, which bureau will work in close contact with the Secretary of Publicity Division of the State Committee.

Committee Meeting Lively

The joint meeting of the Campaign Committee and the Legislative Campaign Committee, the first under the Chairmanship of John R. Crews, Republican leader of Kings County, and the latter organized by Mr. Ives, turned itself into a lively discussion of party problems and the most effective way of waging a state-wide campaign. Indications are that, as a result of the meeting, the motor caravan suggested by Mr. Ives will tour the state in the early fall, with legislators making speeches wherever and whenever anyone will listen. The radio will be used extensively, it was added, and several surprise moves will be developed within the next few months. All told, the meeting made for an interesting meeting of minds and promises an intensive campaign this fall.

Ives Answers Governor

Democrats are making a survey to gauge the effects of the state-wide radio broadcast made Sunday, May 12, over Station WGY by Minority Leader Ives. In a half hour speech Mr. Ives cited the Republican record of the Legislative session which concluded April 17, answering statements by Governor Lehman, made in a similar broadcast over the same hookup on May 5.

Ives struck hard at his talk, particularly attacking the Democratic legislative majority for the ripper legislation introduced. He blamed the Governor for not seeking to call a halt to this type of legislation and bluntly swept aside Governor Lehman's assertion that the Governor's initial address was not dictated by political motives.

Dividing his talk into three parts, Mr. Ives showed how the Republican Minority "went along with the Governor when it thought he was right; opposed him when it thought he was wrong, and offered alternate proposals when it thought he was right in principal but wrong in method."

Whether or not Senator John J. Dunnigan and Speaker Irwin Steingut will go on the air to rebut the damage Mr. Ives did to the Governor will depend upon the result of this State-wide survey.

Special Session Still Possible

The Democratic delay in awarding some $630,000 worth of juicy patronage in commissions and special investigating bodies to the "faithful", has given rise to suspicion that Postmaster-General James A. Farley is still trying to line up enough Tammany votes to pass reapportionment at a special session of the Legislature. It is known that the Governor would call the special session if he were sure of passage of reapportionment. Ripe plums, interspersed with threats, are being dangled in front of the eyes of hungry and faintly alarmed Tammany district leaders. The new-found militancy of the Republican Party in the State is also being used by "Big Jim" as another reason why Tammany should "come into line". However, the next few weeks will tell the story, and the odds are still against the passage of reapportonment this year, special session or no.

Farm is Answer To Tax Problem

Vital in Solving Delinquency, Studies of 41 Towns Reveal.

According to studies made in forty-one towns in Broome, Chemung Montgomery, Steuben, Tioga and Tompkins counties, "Any solution to the problem of tax delinquency in these areas must be built mainly around the farms," says the department of agricultural economics at Cornell University.

"Non-village property of five acres and more, in general agricultural or semi-agricultural land, shows a higher percentage of tax delinquency than other property groups in rural areas.

"In 1928, assumed to be normal, a fairly definite relationship was found between tax delinquency and land class, road class, farm class, value, and acreage. Delinquency was higher on the poor and less well-located places. This relationship, however, was less marked in 1932.

"Studies of village properties bore out, in general, the trends observed on the agricultural lands. The increased proportion of properties going to tax sale, and of those on which taxes were not paid until they were advertised, confirms the general lag in payment. In general tax delinquency on village properties presents a less serious problem than that on agricultural land."

Tells Ways To Build The Lawn

Cheap Job Will Not Pay - Well-Prepared Turf Lasts a Lifetime.

The Addison Advertiser has received a copy of a Cornell bulletin which tells how to build and maintain lawns.

The bulletin says: "Most home owners desire a beautiful lawn. New York's climate favors the growth of grass, and the rainfall is such as to require little irrigation. At special times, however, as immediately after germination of the seed, proper amounts of moisture should be given the young grass plants. Also, during an occasional hot spell or drouth, some watering will be necessary.

"A cheap job of lawn construction will not pay. Haste is wasteful, but every step must count. A well-prepared lawn will last a lifetime, whereas one that is poorly-built is, in the end, more expensive to maintain than one properly prepared at the start."

The bulletin has fifty-two pages, tells what grass seed to select, how to make lawn mixtures, how to prepare and maintain new and old lawns, what to do about weeds, insects, and diseases, and it has other information that lawn-growers should have.

The Advertiser has been informed that this bulletin will be sent free of charge to residents of New York state. A penny post card to the office of publication in Roberts Hall, Ithaca, New York brings a copy. Send requests to that office in Ithaca, and ask for bulletin E-296.

SPRING FLOWERS

Instead of crowding many blossoms into one container, let the nature of the plant growth suggest ways to arrange spring flowers, says the New York state college of home economics.

Arrange a few blossoms of hepaticas, for example, as they would appear in their natural setting. Hepaticas have about 20 or 30 or less blossoms in one clump in the woods, and the brown leaves of last year's plant make this year's blossoms more prominent. Branches of trees should be arranged so that their rugged character is preserved. Vines should appear to run, droop, or climb. The delicacy shown by these plants in the woods should not be lost when they are brought to the house.

The type of container used is also important, and should be based on simplicity and fitness. With wild flowers the natural setting may be copied and a container chosen to resemble in color and shape their background in the woods. Hepaticas, for example, are usually found among dried leaves, and a simple bowl of brown, tan or uncolored glass recalls the woodland background and shows their delicate coloring.

Grown-ups as well as children should be taught what flowers to gather and how to pick them. New York state has a law to govern the picking of certain wild flowers; everyone who collects flowers or plants should know the law. Some persons like to pick flowers, but have no use for them later. Others collect them in armfuls to take home. One wise teacher in this state takes her children on walks to bring home mental pictures of the flowers instead of the flowers themselves. Those who pick blossoms or branches should cut a few with a knife and leave the rest to propagate and for others to admire.

Classified Milk Plan

R. G. asks: "Is there any provision in the classified milk price plan to compel the dealer to use the milk in the class or classes most profitable to the producer?"

H. R. Varney of the department of agricultural economics answers: "No, but since the sale of fluid milk and cream usually brings more profit and as the prices to producers for these classes are highest, the interest of both producer and dealer is served when as much of the milk as possible is sold as milk and cream, and not as manufactured products.

"The dealer usually uses the remainder in the form most profitable to him."

What Kind of Corn?

J. F. F. asks: "What varieties of corn are recommended for silage?"

W. D. Swope of the department of plant breeding replies: "The recommended varieties for New York state are West Branch Sweepstakes, Luce's Favorite, Oswego Ensilage, Double-Cross 29-3, Cornell No. 11, and Golden Glow.

"In selecting a variety of corn for silage, look for a high yield of dry matter and a high percentage of dry matter when the corn is harvested. Tests made in many counties for many years under a wide range of growing conditions show that dent varieties of medium early to medium late maturing are best for silage.

"Buy seed of recommended varieties. If you are not sure of the variety best adapted to local conditions, ask your county agricultural agent for suggestions."

The Reputable Funeral Director Invites Inspection

The average person has no means of measuring value in funeral merchandise and service. That makes it doubly important that the funeral director called be one in whom implicit confidence and trust may be placed.

The only way to be sure is to investigate in advance. All reputable funeral directors welcome such inquiries and are entirely willing to give specific information without obligation.

BIG DOUBLE CIRCUS HAS VAST PROGRAM

The world's newest big show, the Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty Circus fresh from a five year European tour will exhibit in Elmira, Sat., June 1st.

The No. 1 advertising car, the first of three in advance of the Colossus of all amusements, is now in this vicinity. Billposters, bannermen, lithographers, radio men and press agents are heralding the great event, and soon everyone will be planning for a gala visit to the world's largest "big top," the center of the biggest canvas city ever assembled to thrill, entertain and amuse a great and discriminating populace.

Traveling on three trains of double-length steel railroad cars, the giant of super-circuses will bring 1080 people, 812 menagerie animals, five herds of elephants and 500 horses.

Pre-eminent features is Clyde Beatty, trained wild animal exhibition. Beatty is acknowledged to be the greatest wild animal trainer of all time.

There are 400 performers including the famous Nelson family of acrobats; the Imperial Harolds; the Flying Thrillers: Allen King and his cage of fury; Harietta, the famous equestrienne, and 60 internationally celebrated and beloved clowns. The Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty horse fair has become a feature amazing in its appeal throughout the North American continent.

The big holiday will be ushered in with an immense street parade at 11 a. m. Upwards of 500 horses, three score of elaborately carved and gilded allegorical floats and tableau wagons together with many cages and open dens of Clyde Beatty's animals will be seen in the processional. There will be five herds of elephants and two caravans of camels from the great desert. Five bands and two steam calliopes will furnish music. Doors to the menagerie open at 1 and 7 p. m. The big show will start at 2 and 8 p. m. All seats are provided with foot rests.

Society Has Unusual Exhibit

The exhibit of antiques and sewing held in the Presbyterian church on Thursday was a very interesting and enjoyable affair. The loans went far beyond the expectation of the committees in beauty and historical worth. One article loaned by Mrs. Stella Glover of East Lindley was of unusual interest and value, being a cravat pin of gold with an amber colored stone, owned and used by Sir Francis Cook and brought over by him from England on the Mayflower and handed down through the Cook family until it reached Mrs. Glover through her grandmother, Mrs. Austin Cook. A pair of hand-wrought brass candleholders belonging to Mrs. Earl Stermer were among the very oldest antiques, being about 200 years old. Other interesting things were a hand made tucked, embroidered, man's wedding shirt of 1855 displayed by Mrs. Leah Oakden; a hand quilted bed spread in beautiful design used on a four-poster belonging to Carlos P. and Walter Darling of 125 years ago; display of various hand made pieces, belonging to Mrs. Agnes McCullough, of over 100 years ago, one all wool sheet, and one wool coverlet in blue and white made in 1829. There were several old books, the oldest being of 1804, loaned by Leda W. Chace. There were dishes of lustreware, willowware, red glass and pewter. Several kinds of old lamps and kitchen articles. In the display of quilts, there were 23, all beautiful, and over 50 pieces of modern embroidery. Several old shawls of paisley and silk and old mantillas were shown, and with seven night or day caps of exquisite needlework near by, one could easily see the dear old ladies who bent over their fine sewing under the dim candlelight of years gone by.

The two-cent supper served in connection with the exhibit, was well attended and well handled by the committee. The proceeds of the affair were $16.30 and the Women's Missionary Society is very grateful for all the loans and help extended for their project.

Knights Invade Hornell Friday

Coach Hewson's Knights will invade Hornell tomorrow (Friday) afternoon with the announced purpose of rustling up the Maple Leaves and halting the dash of their opponents toward the Class A Steuben County League title. John Lefty Flynn, who hurled the Knights to victory over Corning Northside Tuesday afternoon, is said to be in excellent trim for the pitching assignment if it should come his way. John Steamboat Smith, freshman sensation, has been raring at the bit for a chance in a major engagement and, if selected for the boxwork in Hornell, an uncomfortable afternoon for the Maples is promised.

On Tuesday next the Knights will entertain the Westfield High School in a return engagement on the home diamond. Some time ago Hewson's men set back the aspirations of the Westfield representatives by a one-sided score, and the edge should be distincty in favor of the Knights when the two teams again take the field. But then - anything can happen, as was evidenced by the rally staged by Haverling which gave them victory over the Addison nine several days ago. On Friday, May 24, the Knights will don armour at Painted Post against the bloodthirsty Indians in another league engagement.

I have followed it with keen interest and I now feel the time has come to spring as much of a bombshell as I can.

"In "The National Geographic Magazine" for December, 1932, appears an article by Ralph A. Graves entitled "A Short Visit to Wales". Contained in this article is the following quote: "It is the first village on the shore of the Island of Anglesey, four miles from Bangor. Practical map makers irreverently label it briefly "Llanfairpwllgwyngyll" or even "Llanfair P. G.," but its unabridged, honest-to-Cymric name is:

"Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandysiliogogogoch " which means "Church of St. Mary in a hollow white hazel, near to a rapid whirlpool and to St. Tysilio's Church, near to a red cave". The street urchins of Llan etc. reap a considerable harvest from tourists, who pay a penny to have the name pronounced, and, considering the length of service rendered, the fee seemed to be within reason".

This little word contains a mere fifty-eight letters and should stir up some competition, even if it doesn't win.

Very truly yours
Curtis S. Taylor

Mr. Maurice E. Miller
Editor of Addison Advertiser
Addison, N. Y.
Dear Mr. Miller:

I wish to submit a word for your "Big Word Derby." The following proper noun, the name of a village in Wales, contains fifty-nine letters:

Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandyssiliogogogoch.

An article written by Anthony Armstrong printed in the Readers Digest, Feb. 1935 is the source of my information.

Very truly yours,
Margaret N. Wilson
(Mrs. H. M.)

A message from James McGuire of Jasper promises a contribution "that should make those Nutmeg State professors dig into their textbooks," Mr. McGuire's big word is promised for delivery before the end of the contest next week, and it is hoped he will send it along, no matter whether or not it is exceeded in length by any of those published above.

The board now reads: Mrs. Wilson, 59; Douglas Hand, 58, Curtiss Taylor, 58; Willis R. Perry, 56; G. J. Kilroy, 54; Woodhullite, 53; Twenty Grand, 53; Emery H. Chase, 48; George Northrup, 45.

Are there any more? It hardly seems possible. But next week will tell. The Big Derby now hits into the home stretch and the winner will be announced in next week's issue.

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Big Flats in the County of Chemung and State of New York, a small strip being in the Town of Corning, Steuben County, New York, and said parcel being described in a deed from Reuben M. Mundy to Nicholas S. Mundy dated May 20th, 1845, recorded in Chemung County Clerk's office in Liber 16 of Deeds at page 14, as being a part of a certain fourteen hundred (1400) acres tract of land patented to Egbert Dewitt and Jacob R. Dewitt, beginning on the northerly bank of the Chemung River on the line of said fourteen hundred acre tract, running from thence westerly up said river ten (10) chains to the corner of lands now in the occupation of Jacob Wormley; thence north along said Wormley's line one hundred one (101) chains and fifty (50) links to a stake and stones; thence east so far as to come directly north of the northwest corner of the Hammond farm so as to follow down the Hammond line as it now stands between the two farms to the river; from thence up the river to the place of beginning, supposed to contain two hundred (200) acres of land, be the same more or less; being the same premises devised by Nicholas S. Mundy to Simeon Hughson for life and after his death to his son, Frederick W. Hughson, and to Frederick W. Hughson for life, and after his death to the lawful heirs of said Frederick W. Hughson, and being known as the home farm of Nicholas S. Mundy, deceased.

EXCEPTING and RESERVING the lands conveyed to and occupied by the Erie Railroad Company by deed dated the 20th day of August, 1840, and recorded in Chemung County Clerk's Office in Vol. 7 of Deeds, at page 407, containing one and ninety-six hundredths (1.96) acres. Also lands conveyed to New York, Lackawanna & Western Railway Company by deed dated May 17th, 1902 and recorded in Liber 79, page 439, containing eight and sixty-two hundredths (8.62) acres. Also lands conveyed to Elmira, Corning & Waverly Railway Company by condemnation proceedings dated August 16th, 1910, and recorded in Liber 9 of Lis Pendens at page 363, containing one and thirty-seven hundredths (1.37) acres.

ALSO ALL THAT OTHER TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Corning, County of Steuben and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the western boundary line of the Home Farm belonging to parties of the second part (The Hughsons) at an old oak tree which marks the southeast corner of lands belonging to one Scudder, running thence north eighty-two degrees west nine and forty-eight hundredths (9.48) chains; thence north five degrees east one and twenty-one hundredths (1.21) chains; thence north eighty-two degrees west six and fifteen hundredths (6.15) chains to a point in the east boundary line of the John Burt Farm; thence south six degrees thirty minutes west along the east line of the John Burt property to a point in the south line of the abandoned Chemung Canal Feeder; thence in a southeasterly direction following the southern boundary of the abandoned Chemung Canal Feeder to its intersection with the west line of the Home Farm to parties of the second part; thence in a northerly direction along said west boundary line to the point of beginning, containing altogether about thirty-six (36) acres of land, be the same more or less.

It is the intention and purpose of this deed to correct a deed given by Mary L. Owen and Louise Hughson Way to Frederick W. Hughson by deed dated January 31st, 1900, and recorded in Steuben County Clerk's Office in Volume 262 of Deeds at page 426. The property described herein being a part of the residuary estate of Nicholas S. Mundy whose will was probated in Chemung County October 29th, 1894, and recorded in Chemung Co. Surrogate's Office in Volume 14 of Wills at page 713, and also recorded in the Steuben County Clerk's Office in Volume 332 of Deeds, at page 293, said residuary estate having been willed to Catherine Hughson and Louisa Owen; Catherine Hughson having died leaving a will devising all her property to two grandchildren, Frederick W. Hughson and Louise Hughson Way, party of the first part herein; Louise Owen having died leaving a will devising her residuary estate, including the above described property, to Louise Hughson Way, party of the first part herein, Frederick Hughson having died leaving a will devising properties, including the property herein described, to his three children Simeon M., Mary F., and Herbert B. Hughson, parties of the second part herein.

The property herein described includes not only the property described in the deed given by Mary L. Owen and Louise Hughson Way to Frederick W. Hughson by deed dated January 31st, 1900, and recorded in Steuben County Clerk's office in Volume 262 of deeds at page 426, in which deed the property was erroneously described as bounded on the north by the Chemung Canal Feeder "and" on the south by lands of Edwin Meeks" when the description should have been "on the south by the Chemung Canal Feeder and north by lands of Edwin Meeks", but it also includes the small strip east of such premises once belonging to one Allard and late the property of Nicholas Mundy, and it also includes the land which reverted to Nicholas Mundy or his heirs upon the abandonment of the Chemung Canal Feeder and the highway bounding it on the north.

The premises herein described are shown on a map of lands belonging to the estate of Nicholas Mundy on which the thirty-six acres hereinbefore described are shown as the "Hill Lot", being the same premises which Simeon M. Hughson and wife and Mary F. Hughson by their deed dated the 5th of April, A. D., 1929, and recorded in Chemung and Steuben County Clerk's offices in Deed Book ..... page ..... granted and conveyed all their rights, title and interest unto Herbert B. Hughson and Violet Hughson his wife, in fee.

Farmers Join Herd Testing

Within the past week 24 dairies signed up with the Farm Bureau for the dairy record service. This brings the total number of herds on test in Steuben County to 133 in which there are 1943 cows.

Last week's sign-up is the work of assistant manager Jos. Baran. He reports that dairymen are keenly interested in the record service and are anxious to participate in the benefits which its affords.

New members for the dairy record club, the mail order service, are: Norman Schneider, John Wager, George Wager, Frank Wager, Deyo Van Wormer, Fred Thorp, R. R. Crouch, Arthur Zimmer, and Ernest Slayton of Cohocton; B. F. Shults, Arthur Moss and Deyo Bauter of Avoca.

Others to join are Harry Barr of Cameron Mills; O. B. Marlatt of Jasper; H. C. Angel, E. C. Hults and Cair Arnburg of Bath; A. J. Havens of Wheeler; and C. A. Margeson of Howard.

Fay Jackson and Fayette Van Wormer, Wallace; C. P. Stanton and L. Hubbard of Cohocton; Wayne Marsh of Canisteo; G. C. Prior of Hornell; Bert Bennett, Howard; Harold Fritz Est., Arkport; and Frank Knickerbocker of Troupsburg have joined the Dairy Herd Improvement Associations.

Increased interest in dairy records, in the opinion of A. W. Norris, chairman of the farm bureau dairy committee, is quite largely the result of the Better Sire Campaign, which has emphasized the importance of production records on each individual cow as a means of developing a profitable herd.

Lawrenceville At Tuscarora Field Sunday

The Lawrenceville team will oppose Manager John O'Keefe's Addison nine in the opening game of the season at Tuscarora Field next Sunday afternoon. The locals have held several stiff practice sessions during the week and it is expected that many of the defects which were so glaringly apparent against Elkland will have been completely overcome in the next engagement.

Hank Riffle, an old favorite in an Addison uniform, is appearing in Lawrenceville colors this season, and is expected to see action against his old mates in Sunday's opener.

McCoy, who ranked as one of the leading hurlers in the league last year, will serve up the balls and strikes for the visitors. The Addison pitching selection has not been announced.

More Profitable Herds Are Urged

Make Adjustments Now, in Time For Next Up-Swing, Bradt Advises.

In good times and bad, cows that produce most are the most efficient and make the most money, says Professor C. G. Bradt of the New York state college of agriculture.

He urges New York dairymen to get their herds in shape to benefit from the next up-swing in the dairy business which now appears to be under way.

"It may take some time before the full effect of the upward movement is felt, but it appears that the corner has been turned and that better times are ahead. Dairymen should start early to make changes which will lead to greater profits in the future."

Among possible adjustments, Professor Bradt suggests that care be taken in selecting calves for rearing. He advises dairymen to rear only those heifers from cows that have produced more than 300 pounds of butterfat when fully-grown, or an equivalent production at an earlier age. Such plan of careful selection, he says, should result in better herds four or five years from now.

"The herd bull should also be considered carefully. If a purebred bull is kept, and he carries production records in his pedigree better than the best cow in the herd, some assurance may be had that the daughters of these bulls will produce more milk and butterfat than their mothers."

Professor Bradt also recommends efficient feeding based on production and control of disease as another advantage. The keeping of dairy records, he says, will help to make these adjustments possible and easier.

Jasper Conquers Greenwood Nine

Jasper High opened their season against Greenwood on the home diamond on Friday, May 10, and promptly climbed into a tie with Troupsburg for first place in the league. Bobby Swan came away best in a pitching duel against Birmingham of Greenwood. Although touched for one more hit than Birmingham, Swan showed better control and walked less men than his opponent. Fine weather and a dry diamond allowed the boys to step out and play a fine brand of baseball. Errors were quite frequent, but this may be laid to the fact that the boys have had but little practice this spring. Swan struck out the lead off man and a snappy double play accounted for the other Greenwood men. Waight drew a walk and stole second and third while A. Swan was striking out, and came home on Benton's grounder. Graham grounded out. Greenwood's first tally came when Birmingham reached first on an error and came home on B. Chaffee's long single. Jasper went around the batting order in the second when R. Swan walked, Schenck singled, Walrath walked, Lewis struck out and Welty arrived safe at first on a fielder's choice that gained nothing. Waight reached first on an error, A. Swan grounded out and Benton lifted out long single. Graham walked but R. Swan grounded out to end the inning. Neither team scored in the fourth. Greenwood made their last score in the fifth when Osman walked and Warriner and McCaffery rapped out singles. Jasper made this up when Graham rapped out a rousing double and came home on two sacrifices. Greenwood sat down in 1-2-3 order in the sixth and then Jasper staged another five run rally to dissipated Greenwood's hopes for a rally. Lewis walked, Welty reached first on an error, Waight walked and A. Swan cleared the bases with a terrific triple into deep left. Swan could have made home standing up but was held at third. Benton reached first on an error, scoring Swan, and scored on Graham's sacrifice. Schenck and Walrath struck out. B. Chaffee lifted out a single and stole second and third. Swan bore down and struck out Osman and Warriner. Chaffee was caught in a hot box and tagged at home to end the game. Swan struck out ten men and Birmingham five. Jasper scored five hits and Greenwood six. Greenwood made six errors to Jasper's three

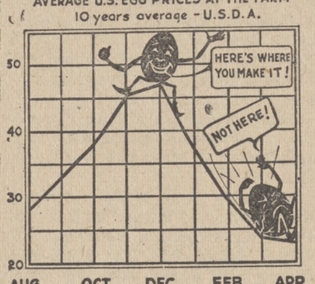
WOODHULL INVINCIBLES ARE OUT TO WIN

Carl Carpenter has put his team out for practice and the Woodhull club has a strong line-up of players. Bob Elliott as captain will fill the positions with his best men. The first game of the season will be at Jasper Sunday, May 19th. This is not a league game. The Little Six League starts May 26th, and Woodhull visits Lindley for their first game. Woodhull has seven new players on their lineup.

EARLY LAYERS BEST PAYERS, RECORDS SHOW

Either get the pullets in the nests and laying consistently from October through January, or don't count on making any money on this year's poultry project!

This timely admonition is now being voiced to poultry raisers by leading authorities on egg production and prices. One conspicuous source of this advice, G. S. Vickers, Manager of the Ohio Poultry Improvement Association, cites some very impressive facts to point out how and where money is made or lost each season in poultry operations.



"The records from 301 farms in Ohio," says Vickers, "show that the poultrymen who made the highest profits had the highest fall and winter egg production when egg prices were highest. Every poultryman who got less than 36 eggs per bird during October, November, December, and January lost money."

This statement appears to be thoroughly substantiated by the national ten-year average of egg prices at the farm as prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and illustrated in the accompanying chart. The upturn in egg prices which every year for the past 10 has reached its peak in December, graphically supports the contention of all expert opinion and experience that money is either made or lost by the way the birds produce the eggs in the deciding four months' period from October 1st to February 1st.

All folks whose chances of making money out of their chickens come principally through egg production, should face the foregoing facts squarely, according to poultry adviser J. H. McAdams, and make sure right now that they are following a program of handling and growing their chicks and pullets so that they will be ready to come into profitable production by October 1st. Now is the time to do something about it, he says; next fall will be too late.

"To begin with," says McAdams, "it is not natural for a hen to lay heavily during the fall and winter months. But if poultry raising is to continue profitable, it is absolutely necessary that the management of this year's flock, starting with the selection of chicks and continuing right on through to the laying house, should be so planned and guided to get that heavy fall egg production even though nature is not working directly with the feeder. Such a management program must include certain definite steps which must be followed through.

Careful Chick Selection

"First, there is the selecting of the chicks. Since they are to be the foundation of the season's work, the chicks should come from a flock that has proved itself capable of heavy, profitable egg production during those months of the year when eggs bring the best prices.

"Having carefully selected the chicks, the next essential step is to have and maintain adequate brooder equipment for them. Before the chicks arrive, brooder houses should be put in order by removing, cleaning, and disinfecting all movable equipment—roosts, nesting, boxes, feed hoppers. Then with broom and hoe a good surface cleaning inside the brooders should be administered. A thorough scrubbing with lye and water is next in order. After that the ceiling, walls, and floor should be disinfected by drenching with a solution of 1-6 pint of Purina cresofec in a gallon of water, followed by a thorough airing of all equipment.

Correct Brooder Temperature

Dependable heating facilities must be available so that the brooder houses can be kept at even temperature at all times, free of draft, but with good ventilation. A temperature of from 90° to 95° at back level is recommended when the chicks go in. This should be gradually reduced the first two or three weeks until the temperature stands at 80° to 85° after three weeks; then continued gradual reduction is advised until by the time the chicks are six weeks old the temperature is from 60° to 65°. Litter, if used, may be a good grade of peat moss, or shavings or clean cut straw from which the chaffy part has been removed. Or the brooder house may be equipped with a false floor so the chicks themselves stand on half-inch mesh hail screen wire instead of a litter. When a litter is used it is wise to cover it with newspapers or burlap bags for a few days, until the chicks have learned what food is and where to find it.

Overcrowding of chicks should positively be avoided. Suffocation, general unthriftiness, and disease are liable to take a heavy toll when too many chicks are crowded into the brooders. Not more than 250 chicks to a brooder space ten by twelve feet, are recommended. Plenty of drinking and feeding space should also be provided for—allowing a feeding hopper and a drinking fountain for every 50 birds, at the start.

Feed and Water

"If good chicks and good surroundings are essential to a profitable start, proper food and drink are equally important—for these are what chicks are made of. When the chicks are placed in the brooder house, they should first be given a drink of pure, clean water that has been warmed just enough to remove the chill. It will be well to safeguard the birds against possible spread of cold germs or other contamination through the drinking water by dissolving one Purina chlorena tablet to every three gallons of water provided during the starting period.

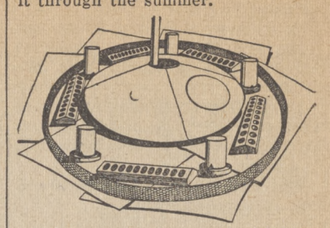
"As to the feed, they should receive all they want, when they want it. Not merely a feed to satisfy the craving for something to eat, but a ration with a proven record of outstanding chick development and livability behind it—a ration, like Purina Startena, that takes care of all their hidden hungers for the vitamins, proteins, and minerals they need for the best of growth and finest of health. A baby chick, with its tiny crop, does not eat much feed at one ime, and with a feed properly balanced and blended, as Startena, it is impossible for them to overeat. This one feed and nothing else is all they need for building big frames, healthy flesh, and good feathering. It may be kept before them all the time or fed on the 'stop-and-go' basis of twenty to thirty minutes on feed and then a 2-hour interval between feeding periods.

"Another important feature in growing an egg machine is to encourage early roosting. If by the end of the fourth week a system of low flat racks is placed around the edges of the brooder house and the chicks are taught to begin using them, there should be no difficulty in getting the birds to roost. Many troubles from crowding and piling that often result in colds, roup, and poor feathering, will thus be avoided.

The Critical Days

"The chicks having received a good start, now face the most critical days of their growth—the pullet stage. For the profitable building of the egg machine depends much more upon the way they're fed and handled from the sixth week until the time they reach five or six months of age—much more than what happens in those few starting weeks, important as they are. It is in the growing period that such trouble makers as coccidiosis, tapeworms, roundworms, lice and mites get in their insidious work. It is here, too, that many feeders, after giving their birds the best of starting feed and management, get the idea that they can now save a little money, as they think, by letting the birds shift for themselves through the summer on some cheap mash mixture, or just straight grain.

"Just how costly a mistake that is, they do not discover until those months of high egg prices come around and their pullets, after having dragged along for months as best they can, are far too immature and poorly developed for profitable production. When they do start laying to any extent, the peak of the season is passed and prices are down. No wonder the oft repeated warning that a poultryman either makes or breaks himself by the way he feeds and handles his pullets from the sixth to the twentieth week, but doesn't find it out until the next year. Anyone who figures on handling his pullets on some such 'cheap' growing program, had better sell his chicks as broilers at eight weeks, for he's sure to 'lose his shirt' if he lets the stock rough it through the summer.



Adequate feeding and drinking space should be provided for baby chicks in the brooder.

"Both the cheapest and best way to grow out pullets is, by proven experience, to keep them coming as rapidly as possible through the growing period by giving them a balanced feed from which they can get each day exactly what they need to build body, frame, muscle, feathers, and egg capacity—a feed that will help them develop to reach physical maturity at the same time they arrive at production maturity. This is what puts them in the nest early, built right and ready to lay big eggs when prices are at their best. Only sixteen pounds of growing feed, like Purina Growena, is needed to bring the average pullet through from six weeks of age to early, money-making maturity.

Worm Control

"Parasites, particularly roundworms and tapeworms, are pests that can easily infest growing birds, with resulting unthrifty growth and high mortality, unless proper action is taken to curb and control them. Roundworm contamination can be prevented almost 100% by making sure that the pullets do not range over ground where other chickens have been running during the past year. It is not so easy to prevent tapeworms, but scattering handfuls of lime over the droppings around the brooder house every few days and refraining from feeding milk or other liquid food which draws flies, will help control tapeworm contamination.

"Should birds become infested with worms, it will pay to get rid of them by giving each pullet a Purina testule to kill and expel the roundworms and later a Purina tapeworm kernel to remove the tapeworms. It is recommended that all growing stock be wormed at housing time, to clear the way for maximum, unimpeded production.

"By starting early in the season with the number of well-selected chicks that the brooder equipment will accommodate without crowding, and following definitely a good program of feeding and management right through the first five months, there should be no question about making money on chick operations for 1935," McAdams concludes.

Addison Defeats Corning N. H. S. By Score of 7 to 5 Tuesday

Knights Win Their First League Tilt From Northside Tigers on Home Field—Lefty Flynn Pitches Good Ball For Addison—Domenick, Hickey and Gardner Drive in Runs With Safe Hits.

Concentrating their attack in two innings the Addison Knights batted out a 7 to 5 triumph over Corning Northside Tuesday afternoon. Lefty Flynn pitched a good game and would nearly have had a shut-out if his support had not wobbled at times. But the Addison boys made up for their errors with some sound base hits which raised the team to 500 per cent in the county league race.

Hickey, Dominick and Gardner were the Knights who came thru with wallops when hits meant runs. Hallet, Mathews and Hickey pulled a fine double play which let Flynn out of a little hole in the sixth inning, when Corning threatened to tie.

Addison opened the scoring in the second inning with three runs. Mathews got a life when his grounder was juggled at third base. He stole second and scored when Dominick drove a sharp single into center field. Gardner got a life when the Tiger first baseman dropped a throw from short. Hickey was out at first on a grounder which allowed Joe to score. Gardner scored on Gillespie's out at first. Flynn ended the inning by popping out.

The Knights added their other four runs in the third. Beers drew a life when the Tiger center fielder muffed his fly. Hallet lifted a little looping drive just outside the infield between first and second that no one was able to catch. Robbins was hit by a pitched ball. Mathews flied out to left field, Beers holding his base. Dominick struck out and the fans sighed at sight of three runs perched on base. But Gardner was equal to the emergency, driving out a clean hit that brought Beers and Hallet across the pan. Hickey drove a hot grounder through the pitcher and second baseman, bringing in the two runs which won the game. Gillespie flied out to end the inning and the Addison scoring.

The Tigers made their first three runs in the hectic third during which Flynn was forced to strike out four men to retire the side. After whiffing the first man in that frame Flynn let himself in for a little trouble by issuing a base on balls. The next man hit a single to left, but fast fielding by Don Gillespie held the runner to second base. Flynn fanned the next batter and the situation appeared well in hand as he got two strikes on the next man. Lefty then let fly a drop which fooled the batter into swinging. The ball hit the dirt and bounded away from Robbins towards first. Fully confident he had ample time to get the runner, Robbie loafed after the ball which rolled farther than he evidently had judged it would. The throw to first wasn't even close, the man being safe by two strides, and the sacks were loaded. Two sharp singles scored three runs before Flynn settled down to strike out his fourth victim for the inning.

The visitors counted again in the fourth on a series of errors of omission and commission. Flynn walked the first batter but struck out the second man up, after the count reached 3 balls and 2 strikes. Hickey took an easy roller at first base, but failed to touch the bag in his hurry to try for the man at second and everyone was safe. Hallet fielded the next ball cleanly and tossed to Mathews at second and Red dropped the ball. An infield fly made the second out, but a runner sneaked in from third. A throw Robbins to Hallett caught runner off third and ended that comedy of errors with only one run.

Northside made a fifth run in the fifth on a walk, a fielder's choice and a three bagger into deep left field. They threatened again in the seventh. Flynn tossed out the first man on an easy grounder. Robbins gathered number 2 into his big mit on a pop foul. Mathews went after a towering fly in short center field, but came too far under the ball, dropping it. A clean single brought new hope to the Corning players' bench, but Hickey gathered in the next little roller directly over first base and the game was won.

"Denny" O'Keefe called the balls and strikes behind the plate while Frank Finnerty umpired the bases.

Troupsburg High Takes Opener

The western section of the Steuben County Class "C" Baseball League opened on May 7, when Troupsburg locked horns with Greenwood High on the latter's diamond, Troupsburg gaining the decision, 14 to 1. The game was originally scheduled for May 3, but bad weather and poor diamonds forced the postponement. As it was, the conditions were poor. Troupsburg High promptly served notice that they were to be a strong contender for pennant honors in the western division. They fell on Greenwood in a savage manner and when the smoke of battle cleared away Troupsburg had touched Walter Birmingham Greenwood's mound ace for 12 bingles and fourteen runs. The only bright spot on the Greenwood side of the diamond was the fact that Birmingham set thirteen Troupsburg batters on the bench via the strike-out route. During this time, the Greenwood batters were able to collect but two bingles off White to score their lone run. White retired at the end of the sixth to allow pitcher Clark a little practice. Clark apparently was in fine shape for he struck out two of the three batters that faced him and forced the other to pop up to the infield. Errors were quite frequent, Greenwood making seven and Troupsburg four. However the bad weather could be blamed for this. Coach Wilson of Troupsburg said that due to the bad weather and poor diamond, neither team could put forth its best efforts and the game should not be taken as an indication of the playing abilities of either team.

Tri-Cos Lose To Elkland Team

The Addison Tri-Cos got off to a disappointing start in the first game of the regular league season against the Elkland Tanners on the Elkland diamond last Sunday afternoon, honors going to the Tanners by the score of 14 to 4. The Addison boys took the field without the benefit of the usual spring practice sessions. After proceeding to toss the game away in the first three innings, they gradually settled down and at the finish were battling the 1934 league champions on practically even terms

George Hopper started in the box for the Addison nine, being opposed by Lefty Freburg, much-feared ace of the Elkland mound staff. George was wild and ineffective and was succeeded by Ralph Wade, who stepped into the breach and held the Tanners in tow for the next four innings. John Grange pitched the ninth.

Haverling Slams Out Victory Over Knights in First Home Game

County Seaters Shell Flynn From Mound in Closing Stanza—Epidemic of Errors Add to Visitors Total —Taggart, Fat Boy First Baseman, Drives Out Vicious Triple—Gunboat Smith Fans Two to Retire Side.

The Addison High School baseball team went down to defeat on the local diamond last Friday afternoon before the onslaught of the Haverling High School of Bath, 8 to 4. Eight errors by various members of the Addison team proved costly. The Bath batters collected eight hits during the afternoon's entertainment and finally sent Flynn to the showers in the seventh inning. Taggart, the big boy who is seen around first base on the Haverling nine, connected for a three-bagger that a lighter-built player would easily have converted into a homer.

Bath's high hopes in the first inning were quickly dashed when a double play, Hallett to Mathews to Hickey retired a pair of runners. In Addison's half of the first, two runs were scored. Beers received a pass to first . Hallett whiffed and Robbins hit an easy fly to Miller to make two out Mathews singled, scoring Beers who had stolen second and taken third on an error by Dascomb. Mathews went to second on the first pitch and scored when Dominick singled between second and short. Gardner added another hit to advance Dominick. Hickey rapped hard to Barber who caught it to retire the side.

Addison added another in the second on a single by Beers and a double by Hallet. Bath scored for the first time in the fifth. Ebsary walked and scored on Dygert's double. Dascomb gained first on an error by Flynn and Dygert scored on a wild throw. Addison scored another when Robbins walked, took second and third on errors and scored when Castrilli muffed Dominick's grounder. In the sixth two Bath batters crossed the plate. An error by Mathews gave Castrilli transportation to first Miller singled and two runs scored on a single by Dascomb.

Haverling staged a four run rally in the seventh that put the game on ice. Pettit went to first on Dominick's error. Lent, Castrilli and Miller all hit safely to bring in two runs. Mathews replaced Flynn in the box until Gunboat Smith could warm up. Taggart leaned on a pitch to his liking and planted it in the vicinity of the Tuscarora Creek. Smith then entered the game, fanning Dygert and Barber and ending the carnage

Bob Drake Succeeds Art Gee As Prexy of Little Six Circuit

Last Year's Secretary Elevated to Executive Post at Second Annual Meeting, Held at Woodhull Thursday Night — Duke Bouck Elected Secretary—Teams to Be Entered From Lindley and Addison.

The second annual meeting of the Little Six League was held at the I. O. O. F. Hall in Woodhull on Thursday evening, May 9. Representatives from Freeman, Austinburg, Woodhull and Jasper of last year's league were present. Among the newcomers were Lindley and a team from Addison. The Addison team did not have any members present but sent for a reservation in the League. Arthur Gee, 1934 president was not present, so Bob Drake, 1934 secretary called the meeting to order. Carl Carpenter, new manager of the Woodhull team, was named acting chairman.

The minutes of the 1934 meetings were read by secretary Drake and were approved by the meeting.

Nominations for the office of League president were called for, Bert Resue, manager of the 1934 Troupsburg Tigers was nominated and seconded. Bob Drake was likewise nominated and seconded. No further nominations being made a ballot was cast, each of the five teams present being allowed two votes. Drake received 8 votes to Resue's 2.

Nominations for the office of League secretary were called for. W. E. (Duke) Bouck of Jasper was nominated for this office. No further nomination were made and Bouck was elected by a unanimous vote.

The chairman called for amendments to the league's rules and a motion was made and seconded that each team entering the league post a bond of $5.00, the same to be forfeited when that team forfeited a game. The $5.00 would go to the team to whom the forfeit was made. An amendment to this rule was made that the forfeit would not be effective providing the forfeiting team notified the other team one day in advance.

Several motions were made to change the league schedule. It was finally voted to play ten games on the regular schedule in comparison to the 20 game schedule of last year. At the end of the season the four high teams of the league are to engage in a series of elimination games to decide the pennant winner. This replaces the system of last year when the winner of the first half played the winner of the second half to decide the pennant winner.

The question of eligibility of players was brought up and a large number of motions were immediately made. The subject was divided into sections and the number of players allowed each team was taken into consideration first. Twenty players to be allowed each team was the final decision. Next it was proposed to limit each team to players residing in the township, to a radius of four, six or eight miles or to an unlimited distance. When the final vote was polled, an unlimited radius was approved, provided no players from other leagues were used. An amendment was made and carried to this rule that players carried on the lists of other teams could be used, provided those players did not actually play with other teams. If such players did play with other teams, they automatically become ineligible for further playing with the league for the present year.

The meeting was adjourned without any further important business being brought up. The first games are scheduled for May 26. The second games for June second and the third for June 16. This system of playing two games every three weeks will be carried out with minor variations for the complete season.

Poppy Day Proceeds Aid Soldier Welfare

Nearly 30,000 new names will be on the scroll of America's dead defenders when the nation honors its war dead on Memorial Day this year, according to Mrs. B. F. Short, president of Williams-Greengrass Unit, No. 730, American Legion Auxiliary. World War veterans have been dying at the average rate of 80 per day during the past year, making nearly 30,000 who have passed on since last Memorial Day.

This high rate among the veterans gives Poppy Day, May 25th, heightened importance, Mrs. Short explained. On this day the Auxiliary women collect contributions which form the major source of support for their work for needy families of veterans throughout the year. Unless generous public support is given the Auxiliary's Poppy Day appeal, the welfare activities of the Unit cannot be maintained.

"Almost every veteran who dies now leaves a widow and children, and few leave sufficient means to provide for their families", said Mrs. Short. "The seventeen years which have passed since the war make it very difficult to prove that the veteran's death resulted from war service and unless such legal proof can be established, no government aid is available for the family. The Legion and Auxiliary must step in with emergency aid until other aid can be secured or the family made self-supporting.

"In addition to the veterans who die, there are more than 100,000 constantly in hospitals. We endeavor to do something for those veterans while they are still within reach of our help, providing them cheer and comforts while they are in the hospitals and aiding them in the long, uphill struggle to regain an economic foothold after they leave the hospitals. Their families, too, often need aid.

"The poppies, which we will offer Saturday, May 25, to be worn in honor of the dead, are our principal means of reaising funds for this work for the living."

* * *

Assignments for the street solicitation have been announced as follows by Mrs. B. F. Short, president of the local Auxiliary: Maple, Goodhue and Wall, Mrs. H. E. Auringer; Front, Mrs. William Kennedy; South and adjacent streets, Mrs. Charles Levi, Mrs. John Wright; Baldwin Avenue and upper Steuben street, Mrs. Clare Chart; Tuscarora street and Brooks avenue, Mrs. B. F. Short; lower Steuben street, Mrs. Erma Williams. It is expected that the street sale on the 25th will be conducted with the cooperation of a group of high school girls.

B. Y. P. U. Meeting Held in Addison

The May rally of the Baptist young people of Corning and vicinity was held in the Addison Baptist Church Monday evening. Representatives numbering 132 were present from Corning First Baptist, Corning North Baptist, Caton, Gibson, Coopers Plains, Lindley, Painted Post and the entertaining church.

The meeting was called to order by the area director, Miss Myrtle Spears of Caton. The group from the Corning First Baptist Church then conducted a brief devotional service. The business meeting followed. Next in order was the entertainment which was supplied by the Addison group. This consisted of humorous readings presented by different members and a dialogue between Charles Champlain and a life size robot whose voice was supplied by Franklin Butler speaking through a tube from the basement of the church.

At the close of the fun period ice cream and cake were served. Adjournment followed.

The next meeting will be held, it is expected in the form of a picnic, at Goodhue Lake.

Fields Comedy At Its Funniest In "It's a Gift"

The new W. C. Fields picture "It's a Gift", at the Avon Theatre, Friday and Saturday, presents Paramount's droll genius of comedy in a story that fits his peculiar talents better than anything we have seen to date.

Supported by Baby LeRoy, who has learned to talk and utters his first dialogue lines in this picture; Kathleen Howard, Jean Rouverol, Julian Madison and Tammany Young, Fields has incorporated the best of his hysterical gags, and some of the funniest zany routines he has ever perpetrated, in this fielm.

The story is a simple one. It concerns a shiftless, henpecked grocer who can neither shave, eat or sleep in peace in his own home. He finally inherits a sum of money, invests in a california orange ranch and packs the family into a dilapidated car for a transcontinental trip to their new home.

Girls, Comedy And Hit Tunes In Penner Film

Girls, melody and laughs plan an equal part in Paramount's campus comedy, "College Rhythm", coming at the midnight show Saturday, also Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to the Avon Theatre, with Joe Penner heading the featured part.

Directed by Norman Taurog "College Rhythm" presents Penner, Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, Lyda Roberti and Mary Brian in a story about the campus cut-ups who turned the department store business into a college football campaign.

College Rivals

The story has its beginning at the State College where Jack Oakie, as "Love and Kisses" Finnegan, a football hero, becomes Lanny Ross' deadly rival for the love of Mary Brian.

Their rivalry is carried over into the business world, but temporarily submerged when Oakie gets a job in the store owned by Lanny Ross' father.

Here he gets the bright idea of introducing collegiate atmosphere — beautiful girls, cheering sections and football teams — into department store business as a means of whooping up sales. Everything goes beautifully until their competitors start stealing their thunder.

The climax of the film comes after the big football game when Lanny Ross realizes that he does not love Mary Brian after all, but his father's demure little secretary, played by Helen Mack. And Oakie and Miss Brian turn lovebirds on their own account.

Melodies for "College Rhythm" were written by Gordon and Revel and include "Stay as Sweet as You Are", Let's Give Three Cheers for Love" and Take a Number From One to Ten."

The first prize for girls in the recent reading contest offered by the Steuben Presbyterial was awarded to Miss Norma Stryker of Avoca while the first prize for boys was awarded to Decker Long. These prizes were offered through the efforts of Mrs. Horace H. Underwood a missionary from the Chosen Christian College in Korea.

Correction

In last week's issue it was stated that a committee from Addison Lodge, I. O. O. F., had requested the village board of trustees to repair the roof of the city hall, and that the committee estimated the cost of such repairs at about $400.-00. Representatives of the Odd Fellows have called attention to the fact that the committee asked $400.-00 to compensate for damages to their property on the top floor of the city hall, such damages, it is stated, having been caused by failure of village officials over a period of years to keep the roof in proper condition. No estimate of the amount required to repair the roof as requested by the fraternal body was given it is said. The ADVERTISER regrets the misstatement in last week's issue.
